Ninety new coronavirus cases were reported in Lithuania over Friday, the biggest spike this week.

Almost two-thirds of the new cases were diagnosed in Nemenčinė.

Fifty-two of the 90 new cases diagnosed on Friday were workers of a garment factory in Nemenčinė, a town north of Vilnius. Following the spread of Covid-19 in the factory last weekend, the government put the entire town of about 5,000 under lockdown. Movement of people to and from Nemenčinė has been restricted for at least a week.
