43 new coronavirus cases were confirmed in Lithuania last weekend. Over a half of them were recorded at several medical establishments that have become coronavirus hotspots. 15 new cases were recorded at the residential care home in Antaviliai near Vilnius where nine residents and six staff members had tested positive for the virus. The care home has been criticized by the National Public Health Center for its alleged failure to comply with the requirements, which its representative deny. They also demand all residents to be tested. A person over 80 and having underlying health issues also died from the coronavirus on Saturday, becoming the country's 50th fatality.
